

RECOMMENDATIONS

- The Commission recommends that Congress encourage U.S. companies to work with their Chinese suppliers to improve China's environmental, labor, and safety standards, which would address some of the causes of unrest facing the Chinese government.
- The Commission recommends that Congress encourage American nongovernmental organizations and the State Department to promote new and existing efforts to support independent Chinese nongovernmental organizations, especially those working on rule of law, healthcare, workers' rights, and environmental issues.
- The Commission recommends that Congress instruct the Administration to promote new and existing cooperative efforts with China that improve China's responses to transnational problems, including infectious diseases and the environment.
